Designing Cities with Children and Young People

Beyond Playgrounds and Skate Parks

Edited by Kate Bishop and Linda Corkery

University of New South Wales, Australia

Designing Cities with Children and Young People focuses on promoting better outcomes in the built environment for children and young people in urban environments.

Designing Cities aims to cultivate champions for children and young people among urban development professionals. The content moves from how we think about children in the built environment, what we have discovered through research, how we frame the task and legislate for it, and how we design for and with children.

Through its international and interdisciplinary group of authors, Designing Cities intends to build bridges and provide a resource for policy makers, social planners, design practitioners and students.
